The Departments of Geography and Human Ecology and the GAIA Centers at Rutgers present:

Socio-Ecological Changes in the Tropics: Graduate Student Reconnaissance Trip Reports from the Summer of 2013

Location: Room B–120, Lucy Stone Hall
Date: December 13, 2013

2:00PM   Julia Flagg, Department of Sociology

2:20 PM   David Ferring, Department of Geography
Political Ecology of Small-Scale Gold Mining in Ghana.

2:40PM   Monica Hernandez, Department of Geography

3:00 – 3:15 PM   Break

3:15PM   Abidah Setyowati, Department of Geography
Muddling through Complexity: REDD+ in Indonesia

3: 35PM   Marian Thorpe, Department of Anthropology
Pulling the REDD Lever? Indigenous Politics and Climate Change in Panama.

3:55PM   Ida Ansharyani, Department of Geography
Agricultural practices, soil degradation, farmer adaptation and deforestation in the upper reaches watershed context: A case study in Batulantehe Watershed, Indonesia

4:15PM   Reception