Seminar Description

This course will introduce students to the problem of hunger and food insecurity in New Brunswick, how it is measured, and programs designed to address it. Students will have the opportunity to visit and work at food pantries and a soup kitchen, all located in downtown New Brunswick. The importance of civic engagement will be discussed throughout the semester. Enrolled students are required to participate in a week-long, immersive service-learning experience during the Rutgers spring break (March 15-21, 2020). This alternative spring break will take place in New Brunswick and allow students to volunteer at community organizations, connect and apply their classroom learning to the service sector, and reflect upon their experiences with their peers. Students will write a reflection of what they have learned over the semester. Students must be 18 years of age when the course begins. If students are unable to commit to participation in the immersive service learning over spring break, they should not enroll in this course. There is no additional cost to participating in this course and break trip.

Learning Goals

As a result of participation in this course, students should have a more complete understanding of hunger and food insecurity among different populations within the New Brunswick community. Student learning will be influenced by course readings and discussions as well as service learning trips and a week-long, immersive alternative spring break.

Requirements

All students are required to actively participate in all class lectures, presentations, service learning trips, and the alternative spring break. Students should come to class prepared and ready to ask questions and engage in critical dialogue.

Grading

This is a Pass/No Credit course. More than two class missed classes will result in a no credit grade. An “incomplete” grade will not be assigned in this course.

The following components will make up your grade:

25% class participation

35% participation on class-based service trips and alternative spring break

40% written and oral reflection on service over the course of the semester

Absence Policy

Students are expected to attend all classes; if you expect to miss a class, please use the University absence reporting website <https://sims.rutgers.edu/ssra/> to indicate the date and reason for your absence. An email is automatically sent to the instructors.

There is one required book: Big Hunger: The Unholy Alliance between Corporate America and Anti-Hunger Groups, by Andrew Fisher (2018)

Other assigned reading will be available in Sakai.

The complete academic integrity policy can be found here: <http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/>.

Assignments

1. Students are expected to complete all assigned readings.
2. Students are expected to complete a short reflection paper. The reflection paper should be between 3 and 5 double spaced pages. The following questions can be used to guide student reflection papers, but you are free to write about your experiences in a different way. Students should not attempt to answer all questions.
 - How have your perceptions of hunger and food insecurity changed or remained the same as a result of this course?

- Reflect on one of your experiences visiting Emmanuel Lutheran, Elijah's Promise, the Rutgers Student Food Pantry, or your week-long alternative spring break. What impact did you have on the community served and what was the most important lesson you learned?
- Reflecting on your service learning experience, how was your experience different than what you expected? What did you learn about the community or group that you served?
- What contributes to the success of hunger relief efforts such as food pantries, soup kitchens, and Meals on Wheels? What hinders success?
- What can you do with the knowledge and experience gained from this course to promote change in regards to hunger and food insecurity in your community?
- What difficulties did you experience when participating in the service learning components (both during the semester and the alternative spring break) of this course? What did you find to be rewarding? Explain.
